Four Little Ones Perish by Fire at South Nyack.

In the Burning of the Rev. Ross Taylor's Residence.

ents Barely Escape-Three Workmen Severely Injured.

NYACK, N. Y., Oct. 22.—The hand-ome new stone residence of the Rev. Ross Taylor, on top of the hill, west of Hillside avenue, South Nyack, was estroyed by fire this morning. Four children were burned to death, laborer was so badly injured that it believed he will die, and two decorawho were employed in the building vere seriously burned.

At 4.19 A. M. the alarm was heard Many people jumped out of bed and hastened out-of-doors, and when the second alarm was sounded a few min-utes later, half the townspeople came utes later, half the townspeople came out.

Mrs. Taylor first discovered the fire and aroused her husband, who investigated and found they were surrounded by flames. They were almost blinded by the smoke, which was growing denser every moment. They saw that all they could attempt was to save themselves, and even that seemed almost impossible. At length, by hard effort, they reached the open air, and saw that the property must burn down without any hope of their saving the children, whose escape and rescue were sut off.

without any hope of their saving the children, whose escape and rescue were satioff.

Michael M. Mulladey a laborer, and two decorators, named Edward Linta and William Ruth, jumped from the third-story window and were badly hurt. All were carried to Adolph Fuerber's residence, on Washington avenue, and were afterwards taken to Bellevue Hospital, New York City, by the steamer Chrystenah.

Four Taylor children, Harriet, Ada, Arthur and Schults, who were on another floor, perished in the flames, but two others, Stewart and William, escaped by jumping from an upper window. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were taken to the residence of Mr. Potter, on Hillside avenue. The bodies of the four children who were burned to the the were found at 70 clock this morning and taken to Smith & Tasman's undertaking establishment. The children were aged respectively eleven, nine, seven and five years. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor are under the charge of physicians, and neither can be seen.

Hev. Ross Taylor, the distinguished missionary Bishop to Africa of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Bishop Taylor started self-supported missions in Africa along the Congo and in South America, the special feature of these missions being that the missionaries, while laboring spiritually among the natives, supported themselves, some as mechanics, some as physicians, others as farmers and the like.

Rev. Ross Taylor has for the past few years had charge of the business matters of these missions, and has conducted The African News, the organ of "Bishop William Taylor's Belf-Supporting Missions."

The police of the Charles street station, report that the steamboat Chrystenah landed at the foot of West Tenth street, this morning, having on board the three men injured in the Nyack fire. They were Michael Mullady, twenty-five years old, a laborer, of South Nyack, who was sent to St. Vincent's Hospital; Edward Valenta, twenty-two years old, of 195 East Nineteth street, this city, and William Ruth, twenty-seven years old, of 204 East Seventy-fourth street, both of whom were removed in an ambulance to St. Frances Hospital.

The flames had taken full possession of it, but regardless of this the girl rushed in and grabbed the new dress, then ran out again to throw it into the street. Then she went back for the pocketbook. This time she did not fare so well, for the flames caught the few garments she wore, forcing her to leave the money to the fire and look to her own safety.

She tore off the burning clothes, but or the fire escape were making their way.

The fire-box is half a block away, on the corner of Fourteenth street and Seventh avenue. It is a keyleas box. August reached it all right, but the drowsiness was on him still, and he deliberately put his head against the box and went to sleep as soundly as if he were in his own bed. He did not awake until one of the boarders rushed down from the house, yelling:

"Here, you, why don't you turn in that alarm?"

The firemen came promptly when the alarm was sent, and extinguished the flames before they got above the basement. But it was an hour before the smoke was out of the house, and during that time the boarders shivered in the street.

"Well, I was so tired."

Returns to Her Mother.

They Were Married Two Months Age, with Appo as Witness.

While Living in Newark He Is Said to Have Ill-Used Her.

The wife of George Applegate, the "green-goods" witness whose testimony has been a recent feature of the Lexow Committee's work, is again living with her mother, having left her husband after two months of connubial bliss. Unless Applegate can disprove some future is quite likely to be anything but roseate in its aspect.

The woolng of George Applegate began with romance; his wedding was the proper thing for a man of his calibre, A building, while chasing a rat in the saloon of Daniel McDonald at 590 Henderson street, Jersey City, this morning, upset an oil stove, which set fire to the building, a three story frame structure. The firemen were called out, but before the flames were extinguished a damage of £2,000 had been done. The house was occupied by Mr. McDonald's family which got out safely.

Police Investigating a Fire at New Rochelle.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Oct. 22—
The cafe of Frank Jarvis, on Huguenot street, opposite the post-office, was burned at 5 o'clock this morning, causing a loss of about £1,000.

Jarvis was out at the time of the fire, and the sequel was disastrous. Besides, and the sequel was disastrous. Besides, he has two determined women on his real, who want more explanations from him than he will be prepared to give.

In the bilthesome Spring, when the "guys" were too busy putting in corn and wheat to come to New York and invest in brand-new pressed bricks, Applegate loiled about the corner of Eighth avenue and Thirty-ninth street. There he fell in love with Annie Brown, a pretty girl. He followed her like a shadow, and by his persistence induced her to speak to him.

It was an introduction while en route between her home and the not very poetical mission of buying medical mission of buying of the section of the fire of the

"He enticed her in his bunco-steering way."

He proposed to her in his own quaint style. It is more than likely he said:
"Annie, to show you that I am the genuine stuff, and that there's no green goods in this game, I'll marry."

His smooth ways had won her, and she was ready, but it was to be done quietly, like the "planting of a farmer."

They met on the corner Aug. 28, and as they walked he met two friends, whom he introduced as George Alfred Ward and his wife, Lena Ward. They all went to Dr. Houghton's house, where the wedding ceremony took place. Immediately afterwards the bride said to her husband:
"I've seen that man's picture in the papers, I think."
"Have you?" he asked.
"Yes; he looks like Appo, the thief."
"Well, that's just who he is, and the woman's his wife."

The wedding party dispersed in front of the bride's home, and she went up to her mother, while smooth George met a woman who had been waiting for him ner mother, while smooth George met a woman who had been waiting for him and went away.

He told his wife afterwards that May Perkins, a woman who lived in Eighth avenue, about One Hundred and Elighteenth street, over a saloon, had all his clothes and pictures.

"I want the clothes, Annie," he said, "and I don't think it's safe for her to have the pictures; so I'll give you a note and you can go up and get them."

Ehe refused, and the went himself, and didn't come back for a week. During Ehe refused, and he went himself, and didn't come back for a week. During this time he had been working for Mr. Goff and the Lexow Committee, and he went to Newark in the course of his duty. He sent for her to come and see him on Sept. 30. He was stopping at 130 Railroad avenue. She remained a day or so, and got out just in time to escape a raid which was made on the place by the police.

Early this month she went again without her mother's knowledge. He had a room for her at 158 Cheshut street, and from there they moved to Mrs. Morrison's boarding-house at 128 Commerce street.

son's boarding-house at 128 Commerce street.

During this time he was receiving $19 a week from Mr. Goff, via Appo. On Saturday last he told her very plainly he was hard up, and added equally plainly that she ought to help support him by spending her evenings on the streets. When she refused, he gave her what is known in puglissic parlance as an upper-cut. Then she came home, where she now is.

In the future, if Mr. Applerate would like to claim his wife he will have to interview her and her mother, and answer a few of their questions. Even then he won't stand much of a chance, for Mrs. Brown says she knows his bunco-steering ways better than he thinks.

street in the dense fog yesterday morning, while bound here from Albany, will be placed on the sectional dry-dock at the foot of Pike street this afternoon.

A representative of the Company said to-day that the only damage sustained by the Drew was probably a displacement of the planking on her hull a few feet abaft of the bow. She may resume her trip to-morrow.

Two Wife-Beaters Sentenced. Thomas Brown, thirty-four years old, who was released Saturday night from Blackwell's Island after serving a six months term for wife-beating, and Joseph Gilligan, forty years old, were arraigned before Justice Meade, at the Yorkville Police Court, to-day, and committed to the island for one and six months respectively for wife-beating.
